

Following is a list of ten ground rules/~~and~~ concepts which I consider basic to even an elementary understanding of how our economy works:

1. Every man is on his own. Adam Smith, Author of "Wealth of Nations", established in his book the ~~concept~~<sup>notion</sup> that if individuals were given the freedom to own the means and results of production, ~~then by operating in their own self-interest~~ the economy would reach its most efficient level of production. ~~The importance of self-interest cannot be over-emphasized.~~
 It ~~is~~<sup>was</sup> assumed that everyone does what is best for himself. Furthermore, it ~~is~~<sup>was</sup> assumed that everyone is equipped to take care of himself. It ~~is~~<sup>is</sup> expected that individuals ~~would~~ try to get as much as they possibly ~~can~~<sup>can</sup>. If, perchance, one individual's drive to get as much as he ~~can~~<sup>can</sup> violates another individual's rights, or causes another individual some harm, it ~~is~~<sup>is</sup> the responsibility of the individual violated and/or harmed to protect his own self-interest.
2. No one gets something for nothing. Unless an individual or group has something to offer to the economy and the economy needs what is being offered, the system is not obligated or designed to include such individuals in the production, distribution and consumption cycle.
3. The market place. Demand and supply define the market-place. Without demand for a particular good or service, and someone capable of supplying that good or service, there is no marketplace. Basically, if demand is sufficient, individuals motivated by ~~their~~<sup>their</sup> self-interest who perceive an opportunity to make a profit respond to that demand by producing what is demanded. If demand or the price that consumers are willing to pay is not sufficient to generate a profit, then individuals ~~or~~<sup>are</sup> less inclined to take those risks necessary for the production of a particular good or service.
4. Profit. Profit is the carrot which encourages individuals to become producers and invest their money in production assets. Without profit a businessman would not be getting anything from the economy for the risk he is taking. Depending ~~on~~<sup>on</sup> upon the astuteness of the businessman in assessing the market for a particular product, he can go from the one extreme of losing all of his money to the other extreme of becoming extremely wealthy.
5. Competition. According to the theory, competition produces efficiency and ~~produces~~<sup>produces</sup> the ~~best~~<sup>lowest</sup> price and the highest quality.

Where there is profit to be made, individuals are supposed to continually invest in that area until the supply is sufficient to drive the profit margin down. What is produced and the quality of that production is supposed to be a function of consumer desire. Consumer desire or demand is measured by how much consumers are willing to buy.

6. Interest. Interest is the cost of using <sup>someone else's</sup> money. Theoretically, the more people there are who want to borrow money, the ~~borrower~~ must be willing to pay to get the amount of funds he needs.
7. Caveat-Emptor. It is assumed that everyone dealing in the marketplace is knowledgeable about the market. Consumers are assumed to be both informed and willing to act on their own behalf. Thus, if an individual pays twice as much for an item that he could have bought for less, no fault is associated with the seller since the buyer was supposed to have known the market for this item. If an individual signs an installment contract and does not understand or has not read that contract, it is not the fault of the seller but it's the failing of the buyer to be more informed and more cautious. In other words, the buyer has not, according to the rules of the game, operated in the marketplace in his own best interest. ~~Thus, both the buyer and the seller should beware.~~
8. Mobility. It is assumed that actors in the economy are not only knowledgeable about the marketplace, but are also willing to go where the best prices are and work for those who pay the best wage. To the extent that an individual is not willing to search for the best price or work for the highest wage, disparities can exist in the prices of the same item.
9. Power of Demand. Theoretically, the consumer in the economy is extremely powerful since it is the consumer who has the ability to create demand for goods and services. If consumers stop buying Cadillacs, those who produce and distribute Cadillacs would not be able to make a profit. If Cadillac producers decided to use an alternative to steel in the production of their cars, the profits of the steel industry would be adversely affected. If steel makers decided to use more automation and less men in the production of their steel, then the demand for labor would be adversely affected. Without demand, production would not have a purpose. However, the consumer must be willing to say "no" to a particular product or service.

If consumers want to increase the quality of production, say "no" to what is produced. It's just that simple.

10. Courts/Contracts. It is critical to the functioning of our economy that promises made are enforced by law. The concern is with forcing an individual to follow through on a commitment once that commitment is made, and not with any moral evaluations of the promise. The easiest agreements to enforce are those that are in writing. The court is concerned primarily with what is contained within the four corners of the document and not with whether an equitable arrangement has been agreed upon. Here again it is assumed that those individuals who signed the contract were knowledgeable about what they were doing and were operating in their own best interests.

Obviously, the above items do not even give a cursory examination or cursory description of the economics of capitalism. However, they do provide insight as to why capitalists behave as they do.

Part II

1. Budgeting. A budget is a plan of action. It is having some idea of what you intend to do before you do it. Budgets are important for both organizations and individuals, and to be useful they should be based on facts and not hopes. Realistic budgets show some relationship to prior year performance. If the organization is new and the management of that organization inexperienced in the production or distribution aspects of business, the best one could hope for in the first year of operation is to break even.

A budget usually has both fixed and variable components. A variable expense item is one which varies with the level of output. A fixed expense is one which must be incurred even if production levels vary. Fixed expense items can become variable over longer periods of time or if the change in production is so significant that additional capacity must be added or existing capacity can be reduced. Of particular concern to those in preparing a budget is the break-even point. The break-even point is that level of output needed to pay for both the variable and fixed costs of the organization. Obviously, if the business cannot at least sell the volume needed to "break-even", it will lose money rather than make money. As was stated earlier, without profit—that is the excess of revenues over expenses—it would not be in the interest of an individual to be a producer. Thus, to "break-even" is unacceptable as a goal over a long period of time.

Although anyone can prepare a budget, it is usually more desirable to have the budget prepared by a bookkeeper and/or an accountant. In this way data can be generated on a monthly basis which can compare actual results to budgeted results. One of the advantages of having a budget is that in the comparison of the actual results to budgeted results, variances can be investigated. The investigation of variances often leads to important information which should be brought to the attention of management. Investigation of variances may reveal for example, that prices initially quoted at the beginning of the year have changed and the organization will now have to spend "x" dollars more this year for its supplies. How does that "x" dollars of additional expenses affect your budget margin? What effect will these additional expenditures have on your cash flow? Can these increased costs be passed on to the consumer or must the business absorb them?

Budgeting can also reveal ~~that~~ the productive units of the organization are not as productive as they should be. A budget then is management's way of measuring how well the organization is performing in relation to the goals established for the period.

In my opinion, budgets are not optional, but are necessary. In a competitive environment management must be sensitive to the fiscal health of their business. A budget is one device for keeping management's finger on the pulse of their organization.

Budgets are also essential for not-for-profit organizations. Since not-for-profit organizations are not permitted to accumulate wealth, they must consume in a given year monies raised during that year. Therefore, it is incumbent upon these organizations to be sensitive to both the projected revenues and projected expenses.

Due to the sophistication of our economy, it is unreasonable to expect that individuals not trained in specialized areas to be able to master the techniques of that area. I would think instead that once individuals were sensitive to the importance of a particular skill, individuals who were trained in those areas would be retained by those in need of advice. Hence, included on the staff of any organization that intends to function in our economy should be someone familiar with business economics and budgeting.

The Creation & Development of the Afrikan Common Market

The intent of this paper is to discuss the creation and development of the Afrikan Common Market as one means of sustaining the revolutionary Nationalist Cadre.

We begin from the basic understanding that "it is the cadre or small unit of dedicated nationalists who must be at the base of any conscious movement the total community will make."

Of course we clearly understand that the nationalist cadre are not the only people in the nation, "but the cadre strives through work and study, discipline and training, to be its backbone, its nucleus, causing positive movement of the whole through constant analysis, constant and dynamic action and encouraging our community always to take the correct position with regard to its own survival and development."

"The cadre runs on a value system superior to the one that enslaves our community." This is the only way the cadre can survive politically or economically by understanding this value system, internalizing it and practicing it.

Ujamaa, the fourth principle of our value system, the Nguzo Saba, speaks about our attitude toward the distribution of wealth. It defines our value for cooperative economics (as opposed to competition).

"Our movement around ujamaa is primarily to sustain the cadre, but as a projection, it is a commitment to struggle for cooperative economics (communalism, socialism) as a scientific world system for the reorganization of world society Q-1

Workshops - Communications/Instructions

These two days will be devoted to sharing information, ideas and thoughts in many life giving and life saving areas. We are not seeking a lot of meaningless resolutions to emerge from these workshops. Our search is for answers to some of the current problems that we face in the areas of Social Organization, Economics, History, Communications, Politics, Youth Development and Institutional Development.

In terms of realistic movement in the black community, we feel that there are four elements that are absolutely necessary: (1) Ideology (2) Organization (3) Communications and Resources. Ideology - a coherent body of beliefs and/or ideas which give identity, purpose and direction. It is a philosophy (theory) and doctrine (practical positions on conduct.) Ideology conditions what you do and how you do it; it must spring from and be developed by black people for black people. Organization - is the structure which harnesses and regulates the energy of the people in their move toward Liberation. It must be dedicated to the gaining, using and maintaining of power. There can be no successful movement without organization. Organization is the vehicle which determines the validity of the struggle. Communications - the means by which information is gathered and funnelled to the masses. The six techniques of the distribution of information are: (1) mass meeting (2) black literature (3) person to person contact (4) establishment of holidays to commemorate important issues, images and events (5) door to door movement (6) mass media (T.V., radio, etc.) Resources - having available means and/or access to capabilities of any kind. (a) financial (b) technical-expertise and machinery (c) military

We would hope that much of your discussion would revolve around constructive actions that can be taken back with us to our various areas and incorporated into our current and coming institutions. Therefore to accomplish this end we ask that you:

1. Use what little time we have constructively
2. Do not engage in rap sessions (personal or otherwise)
3. Question the resource persons; they are well qualified in their field so let's take advantage of their experience and knowledge.
4. Maintain a positive work attitude always remembering that we are all engaged in black struggle - which is, actually - growth and development

We Welcome You.

CONGRESS OF AFRIKAN PEOPLE and the redistribution of the world's wealth."

"The creation of small businesses is done by the revolutionary nationalists as one method to sustain the cadre, literally to support our revolutionary political organization."

We recognize the need in most nationalist cadre to develop economic institutions that will provide the goods and services that the cadre needs and also to maximize the distribution of these goods and services to other nationalist cadre.

The creation and development of the Afrikan Common Market will provide a mechanism for the distribution of these goods and services to the various cadre.

The initial developmental stage of the Common Market is to analyze what goods and services are actually needed, then move to insure that each cadre involved supplies (produce or distribute) one of these needs.

The initial determination as to who produces what is based on who can provide the needed good or service at the lowest cost to the other members of the Common Market. Once that determination is made, no other member would produce the same product thus eliminating duplication (competition).

The immediate benefits of the creation of the Afrikan Common Market are:

- A. The provision of goods and services to meet the needs of cadre members.
- B. The creation of small businesses by each cadre.
- C. The provision of a constant market for the goods produced by that small business.

D. The establishment of concessions operations or retail outlet based on the availability of an inventory of saleable merchandise on a consignment basis.

The actual functioning of the Afrikan Common Market can be shown graphically. (See attached diagram).

The Detroit Office cannot furnish any information further characterizing [redacted]

5. "Racial Emphasis in American Culture", by CARL HAESSLER. ✓

D. Meetings

T-1 advised that on May 12, 1951 a CIG meeting was held at 1956 Calvert, Detroit, regarding the Anti-Semitic problem in our country. According to the informant, it was announced at this meeting that there was to be a parade held in honor of the late WILLIE MC GEE.

b6
b7C

T-28 has advised that WILLIE MC GEE was a Negro who was convicted and executed for the crime of rape in the State of Mississippi and that the Civil Rights Congress in his behalf conducted a nation-wide campaign for clemency in his case.

The Civil Rights Congress (CRC) has been cited by the Attorney General of the United States as coming within the purview of Executive Order 10450.

According to the informant, [redacted] was the featured speaker at this meeting and he gave a talk on the approach to the Jewish problem in the United States and compared the approach to the Jewish problem in the United States with the approach of Soviet Russia. According to the informant, BINDER gave the United States "the worst of it".

In public testimony before the Rapp Goudert Committee, investigating subversive activities in the New York City school system, [redacted] a member of the CP from January, 1936 to November, 1938, identified BINDER as being a member of the CP.

Informant further advised that the general tenor of this meeting indicated a knowledge by the persons present of Communist front organization and according to the informant "it made it apparent that this group is a cultural group either founded for the CP or in the process of being created over from its original purpose to a cover for CP activities". Informant concluded by stating that several persons present at this meeting admitted having been to a recent Labor Youth League convention held at New York City.

The Labor Youth League has been cited by the Attorney General of the United States within the purview of Executive Order 10450.

T-1 advised that on May 17, 1951 a Czechoslovakian Communist film was shown at the Jewish Community Center, 4059 West Davison, Detroit, under the sponsorship of the C.I.G. According to informant the title of this film was "Ghetto Terezhin" (Long Journey).

Informant advised that [redacted] members of the audience, were overcome with the "prophetic value" of the film and they could see this country heading for the same treatment of the Negroes as depicted of the Jews in this film.

T-10 on August 11, 1952 advised that [redacted] was during 1947 and 1952 a member of the State Committee of the Michigan CP.

T-11 on December 6, 1946 advised that CP registration card #94196 had been issued in 1946 to [redacted]. T-11 further advised that [redacted] card indicated that she was a member of the professional group of the CP, District 21 and had been a member of the CP at that time for one and one half years.

T-1 added that [redacted] another member of the audience, stated that the Star of David that the Jews were forced to wear was close to the Negro color bar and that something had to be done about it.

[redacted] an active member of CP, USA, District 7, from 1943 to 1951 and who has testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the Detroit Smith Act trials, advised that a 1949 membership card had been issued to [redacted] and that at the time of registration, [redacted] indicated that he was a member of the Dodge Club, CP, USA, District 7.

Informant further stated that [redacted] had been recruiting Negro members for this group and had made extravagant promises that white women were to be had as bed-mates provided Negroes came to meetings where they were.

T-4 advised on August 11, 1952 that [redacted] was a member of the Frederick Douglas Club of the CP, USA, District 7 at that time.

T-1 and T-13, of known reliability, but whose original sources are unknown, advised that on May 26, 1951 a meeting of the C.I.G. was held

b6
b7c

(DE 100-21945)

at 18915 Santa Rosa, Detroit, Michigan, for the purpose of discussing the latest developments in contemporary art in China. These informants advised that [redacted] of the Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy, was the principal speaker.

The Committee for a Democratic Far Eastern Policy has been designated by the Attorney General of the United States pursuant to Executive Order 10450.

T-13 further advised that the CIG was known to him as a Communist front intellectual group in which the controlling body is representative of local key Communists in the professional and cultural field. T-13 also stated that this meeting was held at the home of [redacted] "a close Communist associate".

b6
b7C

T-1 advised that a CIG meeting was held at [redacted] the residence of [redacted] for the purpose of discussing and making preparation for the first birthday of the CIG.

T-12 advised on June 7, 1949 that the names of [redacted] appeared on the active list of members of the Progressive Party of Michigan and of the CAC of Michigan.

[redacted] a member of CP USA District 7 from 1946 to December, 1953, who has testified as a Government witness in the Detroit Smith Act trials on 2/24/51 stated that the Progressive Party of Michigan was organized by and completely controlled by CP functionaries.

T-1 advised that on June 16, 1951 the CIG presented a "Bohemian Nights Affair" in celebration of the birthday of this group which was held at [redacted] according to the informant, this meeting as a whole was non-political but during the latter part of the evening several persons came to this affair from a CIG meeting.

T-1 advised that a CIG meeting was held on July 17, 1951 at [redacted] the home of [redacted] according to informant, during this meeting, [redacted] indicated that one of the members of the CIG was no longer interested in the "progressive" movement and had become very "materialistic".

[redacted] on December 12, 1945 advised that [redacted] was a member of the CP USA, District 7.

The Detroit Office can furnish no further information characterizing [redacted]

(DE 100-21945)

The Pittsburgh Courier, Detroit Edition, a weekly newspaper reporting primarily on the activities of the Negroes, on November 24, 1951, page 24, column 5, contained an article captioned, "Arts Group In Symposium". According to this article, the CAG held a symposium at 13220 Woodward, Highland Park, Michigan on November 24, 1951 for the purpose of discussing "The Role of the Intellectual in America Today". This article indicates that the featured speakers were to include [redacted] of the National Negro Labor Council and HEROLD MORRIS, Executive Secretary of the Detroit Chapter of the National Lawyers Guild.

The National Negro Labor Council has been designated by the Attorney General of the United States pursuant to Executive Order 10450.

b6
b7c

The 1950 House Committee on Un-American Activities has cited the National Lawyers Guild as being the "legal bulwark of the CP".

T-16 advised that an executive board meeting of the CAG was held on November 30, 1951 (exact address unknown). At this meeting questions were raised regarding correspondence from the National Arts Science and Professions group and as to whom such correspondence should be addressed.

The Detroit News, a daily newspaper published in Detroit, Michigan, on January 19, 1952 contained an article which indicated that the CAG was to hold a TV forum to discuss, "The Impact of TV on the American Home", on January 25, 1952 at the Fisher YWCA Detroit, Michigan. According to this article, the featured speakers were to be [redacted] of Station WJL and [redacted] of the TV Research Bureau.

The Detroit Office cannot supply further characterization for [redacted].

T-16 advised that an Executive Board meeting of the CAG was held on February 15, 1952. The location of the meeting was not disclosed. Informant stated that at this meeting it was decided that "Poetry of Protest" meeting was to be scheduled for February 29, 1952 and that [redacted] was to be the featured speaker and others on the program were to be [redacted].
[redacted] GEORGE W. PERD [redacted]

The Detroit Office cannot further characterize PERD.

T-7 on January 12, 1954 advised that [redacted] was known to him to have been a member of the Packing House club CP, U.S., District 7 during 1948.

(DE 100-21945)

T-18, an individual who has attended CP meetings with [redacted], advised on October 16, 1950 that [redacted] had admitted being a member of the CP.

T-8 on January 25, 1946 advised that during 1946, GEORGE MILPERO was a member of the Professional Club, CP USA, District 7.

T-19, another Government Agency conducting security type investigations, in February, 1952 advised that the CIG, "reputedly a CP front organization" was listed as a sponsor of a Negro History Week art exhibit held February 23 and 24, 1952.

b6

T-20 on February 23, 1953 advised that he had exhibited a painting during Negro History Week in February, 1952 and that when time came for him to pick up his painting, he obtained it at the residence of [redacted]

T-20 further advised on February 23, 1953 that during April, 1952 he had attended an art discussion conducted by the CIG and it was his observation from the speeches and remarks made during the evening that the CIG was definitely a Communist organization.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON BLACK
POWER, NEWARK, NEW JERSEY,
JULY 20-23, 1967
RACIAL MATTERS

The following information was furnished from July 21, July 22, and July 23, 1967, by a source, who has furnished reliable information in the past, Lieutenant [redacted]
Newark, New Jersey, Police Department, and local news media:

Friday, July 21, 1967

As of late evening on this date a total number of registered delegates to the National Conference on Black Power (NCBP) being held at the Military Park Hotel, 16 Park Place, Newark, New Jersey, and the Cathedral House of the Episcopal Church at 24 Rector Street, Newark, had already exceeded 800.
Since plans were made for only about 400 delegates the various workshops and meetings were slowed up and were running well behind schedule. The aims of these workshops were not being accomplished due to crowding. At a workshop dealing with the International Aspects of Black Power held on this date, [redacted] current Communist Party (CP) functionary, got up to speak and identified himself as a member of the CP. [redacted] took more time than the other delegates at the workshop thought he should and he was told by other participants that they did not care who he was or who he represented. He was told to shut up and sit down. (X) u

[redacted] an African Nationalist Group type organization called "US" in Watts, California also attended the workshop on International Aspects of Black Power. [redacted] was accompanied as always by three bodyguards. These bodyguards were not armed but they were said to be experts at judo and karate.
In contrast to his writing, [redacted] did not appear to be a "fire eater". His comments were quite mild. (X) u

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON BLACK
POWER, NEWARK, NEW JERSEY

The planned plenary session was not held on this date due to overcrowding and the fact that workshops were behind schedule. (X)

An open meeting for NCBP delegates was held in the early evening of this date at Mount Zion Baptist Church, 208 Broadway, Newark. [redacted], in an address before this audience, stated it is wrong to riot but it is legitimate to revolt. [redacted] of the Newark Human Rights Commission, discussed the recent riot in Newark and he accused the New Jersey State Police and National Guardsmen of shooting wildly and indiscriminately during the riot. [redacted] stated that in these times a Negro is either a radical black man or an "Uncle Tom," because there is no middle ground. [redacted] Comedian, and Floyd Mc Kissick, Chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality (CORE), advocated that a petition be started in Newark to obtain 25,000 signatures to recall Newark Mayor Hugh J. Addonizio. Mc Kissick spoke on genocide and he followed the United Nations Publication on this subject from beginning to end. McKissick's address was almost an exact duplicate of previous addresses he has made on this subject.

b7c

There is a considerable amount of disunity and disruption being caused at the conference by a militant group which is attempting to get the stamp of approval of the Conference on the manner in which Newark Negroes rioted recently.

The workshop sessions for Saturday, July 22, 1967, are expected to run well behind their scheduled time due to the fact that each workshop would be attended by 70 or more delegates rather than the maximum of 35 planned. (X)

Saturday, July 22, 1967

[redacted] picketed in front of the Military Park Hotel on July 21, 1967, and for a short while on this date. [redacted] carried a sign which read, "Attention all Americans, this meeting of Black Power representatives is full of Black Muslims who have bitterness and hatred for all of the white race. Stop, Stop this subversive, drastic group." In the course of picketing, one of the delegates to the NCBP got in front of Mazzuca and Mazzuca pushed him.

In the resulting melee, [ ] was assaulted by two or three men and one woman but he was not seriously injured. Police Officers escorted [ ] from the area.

Just prior to a news conference on this date, Harlem [ ] was seen by other delegates to the conference as [ ] talked to a newsman. A violent argument resulted between [ ] and they finally engaged in a brief fistfight. (X)

As the news conference opened to the white press began, a group of individuals described by NBC News as "members of the Harlem based ultra militant Mau-Mau Society" entered the Cathedral House of the Episcopal Church, 24 Rector Street, Newark, where the news conference was being held and began assaulting approximately 35 newsman gathered there. They smashed TV cameras, recording devices and other equipment and threw chairs at newsman and their equipment. Newsman escaped through first floor windows and down backstairs pursued by the radical element who objected to the news conference being held. There were numerous minor injuries but no one was seriously hurt. Plain-clothes policemen inside and uniformed police outside moved in quickly to restore order. It became apparent at this point that the radical element at the conference began to take over from the moderates.

It was announced on this date that the conference had 976 delegates from 26 States and 42 cities representing 197 organizations.

Sunday, July 23, 1967

Adam Clayton Powell [ ] addressed the conferenee to explain that [ ] decided not to risk arrest by attending the conference. He was roundly jeered and booed by the delegates who shouted such things as "So what" and "Sit Down." Men at the conference who used the word "Negro" were shouted down and one delegate said that black people do not wish to be absorbed into the white community because the interests of black people and white people are in conflict and their physical, cultural and moral standards are different.

The conference adopted a number of resolutions including the following:

A study and national dialogue to explore the suggestion that the United States be split or partitioned into two parts, one part for white people and the other part for black people.

Formation of a black militia to train black families in all aspects of self defence and racial survival.

Labeled Christianity a white religion that has taken the diamonds and minerals of the world in exchange for the Bible.

Resolved that every black church and religious institution that does not join the black revolution shall be boycotted, ostracized, criticized, publicized and rejected by the black community.

Denounced the draft and the federal government and supported a "Hell No, we won't go" attitude toward the draft.

Advocated Negro controlled financial institutions supported by bonds to provide neighborhood credit unions, housing loans and business loans to the black community.

Formation of a black political organization and a school for black political organizers.

Support of a nation-wide "Buy Black" movement.

Condemned birth control programs on the grounds that such programs seek to exterminate the black man.

Advocated the creation of a national holiday for black men in honor of black heroes.

Malcolm K. Little, also known as Malcolm X, who was assassinated in New York City was singled out as one such black hero.

It was resolved to submit a demand to Newark authorities that rioters who were imprisoned during the recent riot be released with charges dropped and bond forgotten or else.

It was decided that the recall vote petition concerning Hugh J. Addonizio would be handled by two people from CORE.

Adopted a resolution to call regional conferences on Black Power and to organize these conferences within two months.

Adopted a resolution that the second annual Conference on Black Power should be held in a black establishment in a black community.

[redacted] of the NCBP, was removed from the platform because he was too moderate.

A fashion show was held by women of Newark. It was to be a public affair with the proceeds to be donated to the NCBP. Two white girls who had been working in the office of
